

ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

Kings Heath Demolition Limited is committed to the quality in the delivery of its services to its clients including legal, regulatory, and any other agreed requirements to the satisfaction of the contractual requirements of its varied clientele and to the protection and care of the environment insofar as the company can reasonably affect and influence.

To this end, the environmental policy is regularly reviewed by the management to maintain its effectiveness, achieve continual improvement in our operations, and to ensure it remains appropriate to the purposes, scale, nature and impact of the company's operations in the reduction/prevention of pollution and other damage to the environment.

The company's current environmental practices include monitoring of legal & regulatory requirements, aspects, impacts, audits and energy reduction actions, and re-use recycling wherever possible.

The company's operations have both negative and positive environmental impacts. These include, respectively, energy use, use of raw materials, dust, noise and removal of hazardous materials, material re-use and recovery and rehabilitation of Brownfield sites.

The Environmental Policy has been defined by the company's senior management and has been communicated throughout the organisation. This includes inclusion in the site document packs, the display on notice boards and detailing in staff and site induction paperwork.

Ultimate responsibility for the Environmental Management System is that of the designated Director but care of the environment is the responsibility of everyone in the organisation. It is the responsibility of Kings Heath Demolition Limited to provide adequate and the appropriate resources to implement this policy.
